Mutual fund investing involves risk. Principal loss is possible. Derivatives, such as Credit Default Swaps (CDS) and Forwards and Futures, involve special risks including correlation, counterparty, liquidity, operational, accounting and tax risks. These risks, in certain cases, may be greater than the risks presented by more traditional investments. Investing in commodities may subject the Fund to greater risks and volatility as commodity prices may be influenced by a variety of factors including unfavorable weather, environmental factors, and changes in government regulations. The Fund invests in foreign securities which involve greater volatility and political, economic and currency risks and differences in accounting methods. These risks are greater in emerging markets. Investments in debt securities typically decrease in value when interest rates rise. This risk is usually greater for longer-term debt securities. Investment by the Fund in lower-rated and non-rated securities presents a greater risk of loss to principal and interest than higher-rated securities. The fund may make short sales of securities, which involves the risk that losses may exceed the original amount invested. The fund may use leverage which may exaggerate the effect of any increase or decrease in the value of portfolio securities or the Net Asset Value of the fund, and money borrowed will be subject to interest costs.

Absolute return strategies are not designed to outperform stocks and bonds during strong market rallies.

The excess return generated by the Fund beyond the return attributable to equity, fixed income, and credit markets is alpha. The Fund generally intends to generate the majority of its performance through alpha.

Diversification does not assure a profit nor protect against loss in a declining market.
