RANGER SPECIALTY INCOME

Actively invests in debt instruments, which allows investors to participate in direct lending markets traditionally accessed exclusively by banking institutions.

Ranger Specialty Income strategy seeks to provide investors with an attractive return, principally in the form of income. The portfolio will primarily invest in loans and other debt instruments offered by a variety of domestic and international lending sources. Portfolio construction is achieved through active selection of lending sources and debt instruments such as loans, invoice receivables and asset financing arrangements. The strategy leverages proprietary technology, credit analysis and loan structuring expertise in order to invest in a broad distribution of borrowers; and to seek an acceptable level of risk for potential return on investment.
