Headquartered in New York City, Inferent Capital is a globally oriented investment management and technology development firm focused on delivering excellence to the institutional investor within an analytical culture that strives to the highest level of ethical conduct. We apply an engineering mindset and the scientific method to investment management. Our Systematic and Process Driven approach combines deep financial expertise, rich and carefully curated data, along with powerful computing platforms to enhance our understanding of how markets will behave and refine our investment products.

People & Technology working together are at the core of our business. Machine learning, distributed computing and other technologies are tools we use to find connections in the world but it is the judgement and analytical acumen of our analysts that stitch these connections into understanding enabling the development of our sophisticated trading models. Our operating philosophy encourages working together in open, collaborative, cross-disciplinary & non-hierarchical teams. This reduces risk and enhances opportunities while fostering a stimulating and rewarding work environment.
