Energy Income Partners has employed a time-tested growth and income investment approach since 2003 focusing on investments in steady fee-for-service businesses in energy infrastructure such as pipelines, storage facilities and terminals and in regulated electric utility and renewable power generation. Investments are publicly traded with a particular focus on Master Limited Partnerships (MLPs) and their affiliates, Yield Corporations (YieldCos), pipeline and power utilities in the U.S. and Canada.

EIP's philosophy pursues competitive absolute returns over a long time horizon. Our approach is fundamentally based and conservative. We invest in quality, not deep value. This approach works for us because it fits our skills and our conservative personalities. This approach is not for everyone. We seek investors who understand our approach and are willing to invest alongside the partners at EIP.

This is how the partners at EIP manage their own capital. We care about total return, not benchmarks. We care about the tax impact of turnover. We care about multi-generational wealth transfer. Understand that we are very long-term investors.

Will investment in building or upgrading pipelines, electric transmission lines, and other infrastructure keep pace with energy needs? How are federal regulators responding?*
