@freddystacks (/freddystacks) @larryt1 (/larryt1) I get no pleasure out of other people's pain. I've made my share of mistakes in the past and they can devastate a portfolio. Maybe that's why I post my ideas on companies. I make mistakes and that's why everyone should do their own research and not rely on anyone, not even me. i don't provide advice - I simply state what I'm doing with my own money. If anyone does something similar, they do it at their own risk. As for Larry, tell him that you never lose in life until you decide to give up. Don't ever give up!

$BYND (/symbol/BYND) This is where many traders want to believe and hope that their stock is not going to go that much lower, even though every bone in their body tells them this could be really bad. And when it does go lower, then hoping as if it's a given that it's going to bounce, only to then watch it go continually go, lower.
So maybe just pretend you lived it already but not be there and watch the show from the sidelines, likely with more cash in hand. :)
