Do Your Kids a Favor: Pick Retirement Savings Over Tuition

(<https://finance.yahoo.com/news/kids-favor-pick-retirement-savings-143628855.html>)

Most financial planners advise never tapping retirement savings to pay for your kid's education. Yet about one-third of Americans with kids under 18 say they plan to use retirement savings...

Can You Be Too Passive with Passive Funds?

(<https://money.usnews.com/investing/funds/articles/2018-05-01/investing-passive-funds>)

Passive investing is all the rage and with good reason. Choosing a diversified batch of low-fee index funds and investing in each according to your risk comfort beats the returns of most actively managed funds. But can you be too passive with this strategy?

Financial Planning for Medical Professionals (<https://www.investopedia.com/advisor-network/articles/medical-professionals-advocate-your-own-financial-path/>)

Residents, doctors and medical students are often the target of financial advisors, brokers and insurance agents because of their high earnings potential, which will most likely lead to significant investing. However, if you are in the medical profession, it's important for you to make your own informed decisions when it comes to your financial health rather than depending on a financial advisor, especially a non-fiduciary advisor, to tell you what to do with your money.
