

Public Pension Capital is a middle-market private equity fund that invests in a select group of industries: Business & Industrial Services, Financial Services, Healthcare and Specialty Chemicals.

The PPC team is led by former KKR partners Perry Golkin and Mike Tokarz. The principals of PPC have worked together for a combined 70+ years with a successful investment record over that time.

Our experience allows us to add value to portfolio companies through industry relationships, new customer introductions, strategy development, regulatory understanding, operational improvements and implementation of best practices.

PPC is an open-end private equity firm with the ability to take in new capital commitments annually. The firm’s primary investors are public pension funds, as well as a select group of insurers and university endowments.

Our unique capital pool provides significant flexibility in investment size and holding period, including the ability for very long-term holds.

INVESTORS

PPC was founded as a unique partnership between leading state pension funds, other long term investors and the principals of PPC. PPC offers its investors a high degree of transparency, governance and alignment of financial incentives. PPC's structure is designed to provide its investors with attractive, long-term risk-adjusted returns.

ESG AND CITIZENSHIP

ESG: A founding principle of Public Pension Capital is better governance in private equity. We extend a similar philosophy to enhancing value in our portfolio companies, which includes focusing on environmental, social and governance ("ESG") issues. PPC is committed to investing responsibly by integrating material ESG considerations into our investment processes.

Citizenship: Public Pension Capital has provided internships to undergraduate scholars from The Jackie Robinson Foundation and Girls Who Invest. PPC will continuously endeavor to invest in human capital both within the firm and in its portfolio companies.
