Closed-end funds, unlike open-end funds, are not continuously offered. After the initial public offering, shares are sold on the open market through a stock exchange. As with any other stock, total return and market value will fluctuate so that an investment, when sold, may be worth more or less than its original cost. Shares of closed-end funds frequently trade at a market price that is below their net asset value.

All investments involve risk, including possible loss of principal. An investment in the funds could suffer loss. Each fund's concentration of investments in energy-related MLPs and midstream entities subjects it to the risks of MLPs, midstream entities and the energy sector, including the risks of declines in energy and commodity prices, decreases in energy demand, adverse weather conditions, natural or other disasters, changes in government regulation, and changes in tax laws. Leverage creates risks which may adversely affect return, including the likelihood of greater volatility of net asset value and market price of common shares and fluctuations in dividend rates on any preferred shares, and increases a shareholder's risk of loss. Before investing in the funds, you should consider the investment objective, risks, charges and expenses of the fund, which, together with other important information, are included in the fund's most recent prospectus and other filings with the SEC, available within the SEC Filings section of each fund's page or at <http://www.sec.gov>. There can be no assurance that the fund's investment objectives will be attained.
