I MAKE MAPS

(well, not really, but keep reading and you'll see)

I view my role in my clients' financial lives as similar to the folks standing at the soundboard at a show. Their job is to make sure the band looks and sounds as good as possible. They take the product of the band's years of practice and hard work and turn it into something they can present to the world. They are a silent partner in Similarly, my role in my clients lives is to help them make something of their years of hard work. Working, collecting a paycheck, and saving some money is a good start, but it's not until the fruits of these efforts are synthesized into a long term financial plan that a client can realize their true potential. If you don't care about going anywhere in particular, then you can take a wrong turn on the wrong path and it won't much matter. Life is a journey, and not a destination, but it helps make that journey a lot more enjoyable if you have a road map.

I don't sell financial products, or actual maps. Instead, I help you design and follow your own personalized financial road map.
